THIRTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES IN ATHENS, 1918-1919.

To the Council of The Archaeological Institute of America:

GENTLEMEN:

I have the pleasure of transmitting to you herewith the Annual Report of the Managing Committee of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens to the Trustees of the School, for printing with the annual reports of the Institute.

Respectfully yours,

E. D. PERRY,

Acting Chairman of the Managing Committee.

To The Trustees of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens.

GENTLEMEN: I beg to submit to you herewith my report upon the affairs of the School for the year ending August 31, 1919. Such a report must be a statement, not indeed of suspended activities, for the members of the staff have been unremittingly employed, but of a transference of occupation from strictly archaeological work to other fields of usefulness—the natural result of conditions brought about by the war in Europe and persisting long after the signing of the armistice on November 11, 1918.

During the year the Managing Committee has lost one of its oldest and most active members, Professor Abby Leach of Vassar College, who died on December 29, 1918. Miss Leach was a member of the Committee for more than thirty years, and displayed keen and unfailing interest in the welfare of the School. She was Chairman of the Committee on Fellowships for some years, and served frequently on other committees. Of late she had taken a particularly active part in the task of securing suitable accommodations for the women students of the School. It is therefore a matter of the greatest regret that she could not have lived to see the construction (still to be accomplished) and operation of the projected Women's Hostel. Even the definite acquisition of the land for the building was completed only after her death.

The contributions from the institutions which so largely support the School fell off considerably from the standard maintained before 1914, as indeed was only to be expected from conditions prevailing generally in the universities and colleges of the country. The income from this source in 1918-19 was $3,662.07—less by $1,033.35 than in 1917-18. Some little progress has nevertheless been made in certain of the "supporting institutions" towards putting their contributions on a more definite and permanent basis. Under these circumstances the Auxiliary Fund is a doubly welcome addition to our resources; it amounts at present to nearly $4,400.00.

The Chairman-elect of the Managing Committee, Professor Edward Capps, after assuming office as American Red Cross Commissioner to Greece, sailed for that country in September, 1918, and remained there throughout the School year. The Trustees of the School having voted (as stated in my Report for 1917-18) that the property and personnel of the School, in Athens, should be placed at the disposal of the Red Cross Commission, or of the Government of the United States for diplomatic purposes, on such terms as might be agreed upon by the Director of the School and the Red Cross Commission or the United States authorities, as the case might be, an arrangement was made between the Director of the School, Mr. Hill, and Commissioner Capps for the rental to members of the Red Cross staff of the student-rooms on the upper floor, and of two rooms on the ground floor, of the School Building. These rooms were occupied almost continuously throughout the year. In addition to the rental paid they were provided, at the expense of the occupants, with certain much-needed furniture and fittings, which have now become the property of the School.

Mr. Hill and Mr. Blegen, the Secretary of the School, both gladly offered their services to the Red Cross Commission, and from November 1 to the end of the School year were working members of the Commission. Before the arrival of the Commission in Greece they had been active as volunteers for the American Legation in Greece, having assumed charge of the distribution of Allowances and Allotment Checks and of Insurance Certificates sent by the U. S. Bureau of War Risk Insurance on account of Greek soldiers in the American Army (over 25,000 in number) whose families were living in Greece—a task of great complexity and difficulty. This work was now transferred to the Red Cross, which established a Home Service Bureau and placed Mr. Hill in charge of it. He organized this service efficiently, and besides training his staff of assistants continued to direct and supervise it personally. In addition, Mr. Hill spent two months in Eastern Macedonia and Bulgaria, where he first assisted in the organization of relief stations and afterwards took an active part in the anti-typhus campaign which the American Red Cross conducted with notable success in the principal cities of Eastern Macedonia. Toward the end of the year he was placed in charge of the sanitary operations in Old Corinth to which reference is made below.

Mr. Blegen was equally active in Red Cross work, spending most of his time in the field. Soon after the armistice with Bulgaria was signed, he organized the relief-work among the villages of Mount Pangaeon. This work finally embraced fifty-seven villages, accessible only over rough mountain trails and situated on the slopes of the mountain. He was then sent on a tour of inspection of the concentration-camps in Bulgaria in which Greek deportees from Macedonia and Thrace were being held. On his return he became head of the relief-station at Drama, which he organized; and from this centre he carried relief to many of the villages in this region. He was also sent on a tour of investigation into Western Macedonia and Northern Epirus. His last assignment was to Old Corinth as assistant to Mr. Hill.

It is pleasant to be able to record the fact that the American School was thus, through its grant of the buildings and property for the use of members of the Commission and by giving to the Red Cross the services of Mr. Hill and Mr. Blegen, a not unimportant factor in the success of the American Red Cross Mission to Greece. The reports of the Commission testify emphatically to the value of the services rendered by our Director and Secretary, whose knowledge of the country and of the language of the people, added to the zeal and devotion with which they performed the tasks allotted to them, contributed essentially to the successful work of the mission. The School, on the other hand, while deprived in large measure of the services of its staff in Athens, and while its building was subjected to unusual wear and tear, has derived certain benefits from the association. The Director and Secretary have turned in to our Treasurer the nominal salary they received; the Red Cross has made a small grant for the renewal and replacement of the furniture and equipment of the building; and the members of the Commission who occupied the student-rooms have not only paid the regular rental but have also contributed certain equipment, as stated above. Furthermore, certain members of the Commission have established a small "Excavation Fund", "as a mark of appreciation of the hospitality which was extended to them and as a memorial of the comradeship which they enjoyed at Athens and in association with Mr. Hill and Mr. Blegen". This fund now stands at $1,800, and the hope is expressed that it may become considerably larger. The present subscribers to it are, in addition to Commissioner Capps, Major Alfred F. James of Milwaukee, Major Horace S. Oakley of Chicago, Major A. Winsor Weld of Boston, and Major Carl E. Black of Jacksonville, Illinois. In the name of the Managing Committee I beg to express to these gentlemen the hearty thanks of the School for the conception and inauguration of the plan, and for their generous contributions to a fund which, let us hope, will become a source of support to one of the most important of the normal activities of our institution. The work of excavation in past years has been very seriously hampered, and at times altogether stopped, by lack of adequate funds; while the reputation of the School in the future will depend largely upon the prosecution of extensive digging and satisfactory publication of the results.

The connection of Mr. W. B. Dinsmoor with the School as Architect ceased for the time being in August, 1918, when he was commissioned lieutenant in the United States Army and attached to the staff of the U. S. Military Representative in Greece. This of course made it impossible for him to complete his work on the Propylaea at Athens—which, however, he expects to do after being discharged from military service. In April and May of 1919 he was able to make some further explorations in the Southwest wing of the Propylaea, cutting down to the living rock and thereby gaining some interesting and important new evidence concerning the foundations and the steps of the earlier Propylon.

In spite of the engrossing work of the Red Cross Commission upon which he was engaged, Mr. Blegen, whenever those duties would permit, continued his account of the excavations made by him at Korakon, and completed a paper on Corinth in Prehistoric Times (largely in refutation of theories advanced by Dr. Walter Leaf in his Homer and History), as well as one upon The Pre-Mycenean Pottery of the Mainland, written in collaboration with Mr. Wace of the British School and already mentioned in my Report of last year.

These papers will shortly appear in print, the former in The American Journal of Archaeology, the latter in the Annual of the British School at Athens. The elaborate account of the excavations at Korako, fully illustrated, is now nearly ready for publication.

No further progress on the book dealing with the Erechtheum, the joint work of Mr. Hill and Mr. Gorham P. Stevens of the American Academy in Rome, has been possible, as Mr. Stevens has been, no less than Mr. Hill, absorbed in Red Cross work.

Some time before the arrival of the Red Cross Commission in Greece the Greek Government decorated Mr. Hill with the Gold Cross of an Officer of the Order of the Redeemer; and later the same decoration was given to Mr. Blegen in recognition of his services in Red Cross work. Professor Capps received the Gold Cross of a Commander of the Order of the Redeemer and the Order of Military Merit, of the Second Class, with Silver Palm; and Lieutenant Dinsmoor the Order of Military Merit of the Fourth Class.

The long negotiations for the purchase, conjointly with the British School, of the piece of land on which the Women's Hostel is planned to be built were concluded during the spring of 1919, and title was formally passed in May. The price finally agreed upon was 80,000 drachmas, towards which the Greek Government generously contributed 30,000. Of the balance, our School agreed to pay Dr. 27,777.80, the British School Dr. 22,222.20. The difference is accounted for by the fact that our School takes an additional strip, twenty metres in width, to round out the plot. The special law authorizing the sale stipulates that only one house shall be built upon the land by each School, that the land may never be sold except with the consent of the Ministry of Ecclesiastical Affairs, that it shall be suitably planted with trees, and that due care shall be taken to protect the water-supply of the neighboring Monastery, which passes under it. The front entrance to the grounds is planned to be on the American side of the dividing line, opposite the main entrance of the present British School, and to serve the needs of both Schools. At the suggestion of the Director, the Acting Chairman of the Managing Committee has expressed to the Greek Government the hearty thanks of the American School for its generous interest and active co-operation in the acquisition of the land. With prices at the height which they have reached, to begin actual construction of the Women's Building, even if the necessary money were in hand, would be in the highest degree unwise; but the campaign for the funds ought to be begun as soon as possible. Tentative plans for the structure were drawn several years ago.

During the summer of 1919 the American Red Cross carried out a sanitary undertaking in Old Corinth which cannot but prove of lasting importance to the inhabitants of the village and to the members of the School who may work there in the future. The American excavations had become a menace to the health of the entire village, owing to the heavy rains of last winter, which brought down large quantities of mud from the higher-lying fields to the south and clogged up the drains. The excavations had thus become a mosquito-breeding morass, and the water-supply of the village was polluted. To protect the health of the village the Red Cross undertook to clear out the drains, and by conducting the water of Peirene in pipes to the village fountains to restore normal conditions. The co-operation of the village authorities and of the Greek Government was secured; the former contributed the labor of 200 men for one day and all the money in the village treasury, 200 drachmas, while the Greek Archaeological Society made a special grant of 8,000 drachmas. The American School on its part undertook the cost of all work which might be done in connection with the sanitary project but was not strictly necessary for its satisfactory completion.

As was expected, no students were in residence at the School, permission to postpone residence, which was granted to the Fellows-elect, having been renewed. Nor is it now likely that any will be in residence during 1919-20, as at first seemed probable, for the same reason that was effective last year, viz., the enormously inflated prices, which make the fellowship stipend inadequate to the maintenance of a student who has not means of his own to fall back upon. The increase of the stipends from the present figures has become imperative. No examinations for fellowships were held in 1919; but it is hoped to hold them in the spring of 1920.

Professor Charles Forster Smith of the University of Wisconsin, who had, like the Fellows, postponed from year to year his going out as Annual Professor, decided not to go for 1919-20. In his place the Managing Committee, at its Annual Meeting in May last, elected Professor H. B. Dewing of Princeton University, a Deputy Commissioner of the American Red Cross in Greece with the rank of Major, and to be retained in that capacity during the coming winter, to the Annual Professorship. Professor Smith now expects to take up the duties of the Professorship for 1920-21.

Naturally no repairs of any consequence could be carried out upon the School Building, nor much attention given to the garden and grounds; but the Director reports that all are in good condition. The most necessary care was given to the Library; accessions and donations were of course very few.

In July the Director recommended by cable that the eastern part of the School Building be rented for the year 1919-20 to the Red Cross Commission, to be used as offices and as residence for Major Dewing and his family, at a monthly rental of one thousand drachmas,—three student-rooms to remain available for the use of the School, besides a large room on the ground floor to be utilized as a drafting-room. The Acting Chairman at once cabled his approval.

After the School year had ended, Professor Capps and Mr. Blegen returned to America. Professor Capps expects to assume the Chairmanship of the Managing Committee on December 1; Mr. Blegen will doubtless return to Athens in December or January, and expects to take with him the books from the library of the late Professor Wheeler which Mrs. Wheeler has so generously presented to the School. Mr. Dinsmoor has also returned to the United States and obtained his discharge from military service, planning to remain here for at least a year before returning to Greece to complete for publication his work on the Propylaea. Of course his connection with the School as Architect has not yet been renewed.

I wish to express here my great indebtedness to Professor Capps for communication in detail of the relations between the Red Cross Commission and the School; the information thus given has been reproduced with no substantial change.

Respectfully yours,

EDWARD DELAVAN PERRY,

Acting Chairman of the Managing Committee.

Columbia University, New York.

AMERICAN SCHOOL AT ATHENS

The American School of Classical Studies at Athens was founded by the Archaeological Institute of America in 1881, and is supported by the cooperation of leading American Universities and Colleges. It is in charge of a Managing Committee, and its property is vested in an incorporated Board of Trustees.

REGULATIONS OF THE SCHOOL

(As Amended May 11, 1918)

THE OBJECT OF THE SCHOOL

I. The object of the School shall be to furnish to graduates of American Universities and Colleges and to other qualified students an opportunity to study Classical Literature, Art, and Antiquities in Athens, under suitable guidance; to prosecute and to aid original research in these subjects; and to cooperate with the Archaeological Institute of America, so far as it may be able, in conducting the exploration and excavation of classic sites.

THE MANAGING COMMITTEE

II. The Managing Committee shall have power to make such regulations for the government of the School as it may deem proper, and shall prepare and adopt the budget for the annual expenditure of the available income. Each of the Universities and Colleges uniting in support of the School shall have representation on the Committee. The President of the Archaeological Institute, the Director of the School, the Chairman of the Managing Committee of the American School for Oriental Study and Research in Palestine, and the Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of the Institute, shall be ex officio members of the Committee. The Professors of the School shall also be members of the Committee during their year of office and the year following. The Committee shall have power to add to its membership.

III. The Managing Committee shall meet annually, in New York, on the second Saturday in May. By special vote of the Executive Committee these meetings may be held elsewhere. Special meetings may be called at any time by the Chairman. At any meeting, nine members of the Committee shall constitute a quorum for business.

IV. The officers of the Managing Committee shall be a Chairman and a Secretary.

V. There shall be an Executive Committee, which shall have power to act upon all matters requiring executive decision during the interval between meetings of the Managing Committee, such action to be reported to the Managing Committee at its next meeting for its approval. The Executive Committee shall consist of the Chairman and Secretary of the Managing Committee, the Treasurer of the Trustees, and the President of the Archaeological Institute of America, ex officio; and of four additional members, two to be elected from the Managing Committee, at each Annual Meeting, to serve for two years. The Chairman and Secretary of the Managing Committee shall be the Chairman and Secretary of the Executive Committee.

VI. The Chairman of the Managing Committee shall be the official representative in America of the interests of the School. He shall present a report annually to the Trustees of the School. This report shall be printed in the publications of the Archaeological Institute of America.

VII. The Managing Committee shall elect from its members as its representative an Associate Editor of the Journal of the Institute.

THE DIRECTORS AND THE PROFESSORS

VIII. The work of the School in Greece shall be under the superintendence of a Director. He shall be chosen and his salary and the term for which he is chosen shall be fixed by the Managing Committee. He shall have charge of the School building, and shall be resident in Athens from the 1st of October to the 1st of July, with liberty to absent himself for short periods for purposes of exploration or research. He shall superintend the work of each member of the School, advising him in what direction to turn his studies, and assisting him in their prosecution. He shall have control of all excavations undertaken by the School. He shall make semi-annual Reports to the Managing Committee, in November and in May, of the work accomplished by the School.

IX. Each year the Managing Committee shall appoint from the instructors of the Universities and Colleges uniting in support of the School one or more Professors, who shall reside in Athens during the ensuing year and take part in the instruction of the School. The Committee may appoint other Professors and Instructors as circumstances require. In case of the illness or absence of the Director, the senior Professor shall act as Director for the time being.

X. The Director and Professors shall give such instruction as they may deem desirable, and shall have oversight of the work upon which students are engaged. They shall at times hold public meetings at which such students of the School as they may select, or other persons invited by them to take part, shall read papers on subjects of their study and research, or make reports on the work undertaken by them or by the School.

THE SCHOOL YEAR

XI. The School year shall extend from the first day of October to the first day of July. During this period a regular member of the School shall ordinarily reside in Athens; but permission may be granted him by the Director to travel and study for a limited time elsewhere in Greece, in Greek lands, or in Italy. Further, under exceptional circumstances, with the consent of the Director and of the Chairman of the Managing Committee, a regular member of the School may be permitted to prosecute special studies in countries other than those just named, provided such studies are supplementary to work already begun in Athens.

THE MEMBERS OF THE SCHOOL

XII. Regular members of the School shall be those who are enrolled for a full year's work. Associate members may be admitted to the School for a shorter term, but not for a period of less than three months; they shall be subject to the same general regulations and shall be admitted to the same privileges as regular members.

XIII. Bachelors of Arts of cooperating Universities and Colleges, and all Bachelors of Arts who have studied at any of these institutions as candidates for a higher degree, shall be admitted to membership in the School on presenting to the Chairman of the Managing Committee a satisfactory certificate from the University or College at which they have last studied, stating that they are competent to pursue courses of study at the School. Such members shall be subject to no charge for tuition. All other persons who desire to become members of the School shall make application to the Chairman of the Managing Committee, and if admitted they shall be required to pay a fee of $25 per annum for tuition and library privileges. Students occupying rooms in the School building shall pay a fee of $75 per annum. When rooms are taken for shorter periods, the fee will be $15 per month.

XIV. Every regular member of the School shall pursue some definite subject of study or research in Classical Literature, Art, or Antiquities, and shall present a paper embodying the results of some important part of his year's work, unless for special reasons he is excused from these obligations by the Director. His paper, if approved by the Director, shall be sent to the Committee on Publication, in accordance with the provisions of Regulation XXI. If approved by the Editorial Board of the Journal also, it shall be issued as a publication of the School.

XVI. Excavation shall not be part of the regular work of a member of the School, but any member may, at the discretion of the Director, be permitted to take part in it. All work of excavation, of investigation, or of any other kind, done by any member during his connection with the School, shall be regarded as done for the School and by the School, and shall be under the supervision and control of the Director.

XVI. No communication, even of an informal nature, shall be made by any member of the School to the public press, which has not previously been submitted to the Director and authorized by him.

XVII. American residents or traveling in Greece may, at the discretion of the Director, be allowed to enjoy the privileges of the School, although not enrolled as students.

FELLOWSHIPS

XVIII. The Fellowships administered by the Managing Committee shall be awarded mainly by competitive examination. The subjects on which candidates shall be examined, and the places and times at which examinations will be held, shall be announced not less than six months in advance.

XIX. Every holder of one of these Fellowships shall be enrolled as a regular member of the School, and shall be required to fulfill the maximum requirement of residence, and to present a paper embodying the results of some important part of his year's work.

PUBLICATIONS

XX. All manuscripts, drawings, or photographs intended for publication shall be sent, after approval by the Director, to the Committee on Publication.

XXI. Every article sent for publication shall be written on comparatively light paper of uniform size, with a margin of at least two inches on the left of each page. The writing shall be on only one side of the leaf, and shall be clear and distinct, particularly in the quotations and references. Especial care shall be taken in writing Greek, that the printer may not confound similar letters, and the accents shall be placed strictly above the proper vowels, as in printing. All quotations and references shall be carefully verified by the author, after the article is completed, by comparison with the original sources. Failure to comply with the provisions of this regulation shall be sufficient ground for the rejection of the article.

XXII. These regulations may be changed at any Annual Meeting of the Managing Committee.

FELLOWSHIPS

IN THE SCHOOL AT ATHENS

Two Fellowships in Greek Archaeology, with a stipend of $800 each, are ordinarily awarded each year, at the American School of Classical Studies at Athens.*

The Fellowships in Archaeology are awarded chiefly on the basis of competitive written examinations, but other evidence of the ability and attainments of candidates will be considered. They are awarded for one year; a Fellow in Classical Archaeology, however, may, at the discretion of the Committee on Fellowships, be reappointed for a second term without an examination, on the recommendation of the Director and Professors of the School, but not more than one such reappointment will be made in any year, and no Fellowship in Classical Archaeology may be held for more than two years.

The holders of these Fellowships will be enrolled as regular members of the School, and will be required to pursue their studies, under the supervision of its Director, during the full school year. But Fellows may, with the consent of the Director, spend a limited portion of the year in residence at the School in Rome, under the supervision of its Director. In addition to his general studies, each holder of a Fellowship is required to prosecute some definite subject of special research, and, after the completion of the year, to present a paper embodying the results of his investigation. Twice in the year, namely, on February 1 and July 1, each Fellow will make a report to the Chairman of the Committee on Fellowships, with regard to the use which he has made of his time. A somewhat detailed description of the progress of his researches will be required. For the prosecution of his special investigation he may obtain leave, under certain conditions, to supplement his studies at Athens by researches elsewhere than in Greece. (See Regulations XI and XIX.)

Each candidate must announce in writing his intention to offer himself for examination. This announcement must be made to the Chairman of the Committee on Fellowships (Professor Samuel E. Bassett, University of Vermont, Burlington, Vt.), and must be in the Chairman's hands not later than February 1. The receipt of the application will be acknowledged and the candidate will receive a blank, to be filled out and returned to the Chairman by February 15, in which he will give information in regard to his studies and attainments. A copy of this blank may also be obtained at any time by application to the proper Chairman.

The examinations will be held in Athens, and at any of the Universities or Colleges represented on the Managing Committee of the School.

The award of the Fellowships will be made, and notice sent to all candidates, as soon as practicable after the examinations are held. This notice will be mailed probably not later than May 1. The income of these Fellowships is paid in four equal instalments on September 15, December 15, March 15, and June 1.

Special inquiries on the subject of the Fellowships of the School at Athens should be addressed to Professor Bassett.

INFORMATION FOR STUDENTS*

Students who desire to apply for admission to the School at Athens should address, if in America, the Chairman of the Managing Committee; if in Europe, the Director of the School. Information with reference to the School may be obtained from either of these officers. The application should be accompanied by a statement of the preparation of the applicant.

The student should gain as great command as possible of the German, French, and Modern Greek languages before going abroad; and the summer preceding a year at the School may profitably be spent in Europe, working in the principal Museums and obtaining practice in French and German conversation.

The cost of living in Athens is very much what one chooses to make it; but the city is no longer among the less expensive European capitals. A limited number of men students may have rooms, without board, in the School building at Athens.

*Owing to the war, most of the following information cannot be depended upon. The lines of communication may be greatly changed, and all prices are likely to be much higher.

The School library at Athens, which now contains over six thousand volumes, provides all the books that are most essential for study in Greece, and the student in traveling should encumber himself with few books.
